Government of India has been implementing the scheme for setting up Rural Self Employment Training Institute (RSETIs) by Public Sector Banks for providing free, short-term residential self-employment training programmes for unemployed rural youth; and their eventual settlement in self-employment ventures after providing credit linkage. Under this, banks, in association with the State Govt would identify unemployed rural youth, train and arrange for necessary loaning for their settlement. Vide reference 3 cited, Government of Andhra Pradesh constituted a State Level Steering Committee to oversee the functioning of RSETIs in the State. In the 1st meeting of the Steering Committee conducted on 13.07.2009, wherein the issue of provision of land has been discussed in detail and it has been decided that land should be given to each RSETI to build premises.
